It's summer: Watch out for skin diseases

By Dennis S. Reyes

It's summer, bring out your skin!
 The sun and summer heat may be a good thing, but it's also a time when skin diseases can flare up.

There are many skin diseases that can be caused by the sun, including sunburn, skin cancer, and premature aging. The sun's ultraviolet (UV) rays can damage the skin's DNA, leading to mutations that can cause skin cancer.

UV rays can also cause skin aging, leading to wrinkles, age spots, and loss of skin elasticity. To protect your skin, it's important to use sunscreen and wear protective clothing.

Another common skin disease is eczema, which is caused by an allergic reaction to something in the environment. Eczema can cause itching, redness, and dry skin.

Acne is another common skin disease, caused by clogged pores and overproduction of oil. Acne can be treated with topical creams and antibiotics.

It's important to take care of your skin, especially in the summer. Use sunscreen, wear protective clothing, and avoid excessive sun exposure.

For more information on skin diseases, visit the Philippine Dermatological Society's website at www.phds.org.ph.

Pope now able to speak

ROME—Italian television on Friday showed footage of Pope John Paul II speaking at a Mass, the first such images since he underwent throat surgery at Rome's Gemelli Hospital more than two weeks ago.

The Pope was shown sitting in an armchair before an altar and wearing a purple vestment, typical of the Lenten season, during a Mass held in the small chapel of the papal hospital estate.

POPE John Paul II chats with a Vatican Cardinal after celebrating Mass in his suite at Gemelli hospital in Rome March 11. AP/WIDE

At the end of the Mass visiting Cardinal Polycarp Pengo, archbishop of Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, said, "Holy Father, all of Tanzania is praying for you," to which the Pope replied briefly in Italian: "Mi tene, mi tiene" (I love, I love).

The 84-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church looked very tired and weak in the footage.

His personal secretary, Polish-born Stanislaw Dziwisz, celebrated the Mass.

The Pope, who has Parkinson's disease, has not spoken in public since undergoing a three-day, six-hour course of laser treatment to his larynx on Feb. 24 with respiratory problems.

He now breathes through a tube inserted into his throat and is doing breathing and speech exercises.

The Vatican said Thursday that John Paul II would remain in hospital for a few more days to complete his convalescence, which was proceeding normally and would be back at his apartment by March 23 in time for Easter celebrations.

Broken that, Vatican spokesman Joseph Temer-Milly said the Pope would make another appearance at his hospital window for the first time on Friday but added that he did not know if John Paul II would speak then Monday.

"Sometimes I'm the first to be surprised. We remember when I left the hospital I was asked if he would appear at his window. I said no because nothing was scheduled. Then, after the Holy Father celebrated Mass he appeared at the window. That was why he was wearing his purple vestments," the spokesman added.

Temer-Milly said the Pope "intends to resume his collaborations, and is following the activities of the Vatican. He wants to return to the Vatican as soon as possible." AP

Vietnam nurse contracts bird flu

HANOI—Vietnamese health officials said Friday they suspect a sexual nurse who cared for a bird flu patient has contracted the disease that's killed 46 people across the region.

Dao Trung Binh, deputy director of the medical center in Thai Thuy District in northern Thai Binh province said the 41-year-old woman had cared for a 21-year-old man who tested positive for the H5N1 virus and remains in critical condition.

The nurse was admitted to Hanoi's Bach Mai Hospital Thursday with a high fever, coughing and a lung infection—typical bird flu symptoms, a doctor there said on condition of anonymity. Test results to confirm if she has bird flu are expected next week, the doctor said.

The doctor refused to speculate on how the nurse may have contracted the suspected case of bird flu.

Earlier this week, Vietnam reported that a 26-year-old male nurse who cared for the same patient had contracted the virus and is in stable condition. Officials have said they don't believe the male nurse had contracted the disease from the patient but said they wouldn't rule out that possibility.

Experts have warned that if the bird flu virus crosses into a form that allows for easy transmission between humans, it could spark a global pandemic that kills millions.

So far there has been no evidence it has acquired that ability, with most bird flu infections apparently remaining from contact with sick poultry. A case of limited human-to-human transmission, between a mother and daughter, was recorded in Thailand but the virus had not changed its form. AP

Guangzhou, the capital of Guangdong province, is a city of over 10 million people. It is a major center for trade and industry in southern China. The city is known for its vibrant culture and its role as a gateway to the rest of China. In recent years, Guangzhou has seen significant economic growth and development. The city is home to many large corporations and is a major hub for international trade. The government has invested heavily in infrastructure, including roads, bridges, and public transportation. This has made Guangzhou a more attractive place to live and do business. The city is also known for its rich history and culture. There are many historical sites and museums that showcase the city's heritage. Guangzhou is a city of contrasts, where modern skyscrapers stand alongside traditional buildings. It is a city that is constantly evolving and growing. The future looks bright for Guangzhou as it continues to develop and thrive.

Guangzhou is a city of many firsts. It was the first city in China to have a subway system. It was the first city in China to have a stock exchange. It was the first city in China to have a modern airport. These firsts have made Guangzhou a city of innovation and progress. The city is always looking for ways to improve and grow. It is a city that is always moving forward. The future is bright for Guangzhou. It is a city that is always ready to embrace the future.
